

April 17, 2015

Huffpost Politics

Even Chief Justice John Roberts Can't Avoid Jury Duty

The Huffington Post | By Paige Lavender

Posted: 04/15/2015 12:31 pm EDT Updated: 04/15/2015 7:59 pm EDT

United States Chief Justice John Roberts reported for jury duty in Maryland on Wednesday, according to the Washington Post.

After answering two questions in open court about family members, Roberts was not selected to serve on the jury and left the court in Rockville.

Roberts' colleague, Justice Elena Kagan, reported for jury duty at D.C. Superior Court in January 2011, but was released the same afternoon.

Vice President Joe Biden has even been called for jury duty, reporting to a courthouse in New Castle County, Delaware, in January 2011.

"I don't consider myself different than any other person," Biden told The News Journal of Wilmington at the time. "This is important ... It is an honor to be a part of the system."

According to the AP, President Barack Obama was summoned for jury duty in Chicago in 2010, but told the court he couldn't make it.